I've never been a fan of presidents who place blame on their predecessors or who accept credit for events that couldn't have been engineered so soon in their tenure.

~Kathleen Parker

For justice to have any meaning, it must also mean that no innocent person should ever be executed.

~Kathleen Parker

It is entirely possible that Limbaugh himself never needed contraception in college, but virtue in the absence of opportunity is hardly a moral triumph.

~Kathleen Parker

If you don't like tomato soup, you don't buy tomato soup.

~Kathleen Parker

It's impossible to expect polite behavior from people who've never witnessed it.

~Kathleen Parker

Allow me to introduce myself. I am a traitor and an idiot. Also, my mother should have aborted me and left me in a dumpster, but since she didn't, I should 'off' myself.

~Kathleen Parker

Great nations don't have to remind others of their greatness. They merely have to be great.

~Kathleen Parker

People in positions of power and privilege have a duty to perform at a higher level. If not them, then who?

~Kathleen Parker

But principles defended at the expense of pragmatic application is the business of priests.

~Kathleen Parker

Freedom is a messy affair, and sometimes people get their feelings hurt but we think the trade-off is worth the aggravation.

~Kathleen Parker
