What I am is how I came out. No one's perfect and you just have to accept your flaws and learn to love yourself.

~Kelly Brook

It makes my skin crawl to think about the violent ways snakes, lizards, alligators and other exotic creatures are raised and killed for boots, bags and belts.

~Kelly Brook

People think you can't be clever if you have breasts.

~Kelly Brook

I am a light person. I think of myself with a shield, a protective shield around me. And I think of bad things bouncing off it. Boom, boom, boom, ba-boom, ba-boom!

~Kelly Brook

I have the thickest skin of anyone you'll ever meet. No one can say anything about me I haven't heard a million times before.

~Kelly Brook

I do sometimes worry about getting older and the fact that I am not going to be a model for ever...[But] The fact that Helen Mirren can look so great in swimwear is an amazing boost for all women.

~Kelly Brook

I'm into wellbeing, not because of social pressures to look a certain way, but because I'm interested in living a long, full and healthy life.

~Kelly Brook

I've always paid my own way, I've never lived off anyone.

~Kelly Brook

I've loved acting and dancing since I was a kid. Before anyone thought I was pretty or before I had a voluptuous figure, that was what I was going to do.

~Kelly Brook

I regard myself as an actress but, obviously, not in the Dame Judi Dench league. That isn't a problem because I don't think we are ever likely to be up for the same part!

~Kelly Brook

I don't want to make the same mistakes of being swept along with things, taking on jobs that I'm not passionate about, that I don't really believe in but that everyone says I should do.

~Kelly Brook

My mum was never strict. I was allowed to go out to clubs underage, watch TV, listen to whatever music I wanted to, and that made me not rebel. I have never touched a drug in my life.

~Kelly Brook

I think TV is all about not turning off the public, it's about not being too sexy, not being too much of anything really.

~Kelly Brook

I've always wanted to be independent and answer for myself. That probably is the part of me I would class to be feminist. I'd like to have children; marriage I have a bit of an issue with.

~Kelly Brook

I was minding my own business, really, and then all of a sudden, Hollywood approached me.

~Kelly Brook

Sex keeps me fit and healthy. What can be better than that? It's not about crazy diets or gym workouts.

~Kelly Brook

Women in the 1950s were so much sexier. That's what I aspire to look like.

~Kelly Brook

I feel a lot more comfortable on stage in the theatre. It just reminds me of being a kid and doing pantomimes.
