Japan is quite weird because they wait for you to say something before they respond. You can literally hear a pin drop, they don't make a sound until you say something to the crowd.

~Kelly Jones

The story behind every song is individual to itself.

~Kelly Jones

I don't have a special place or ritual for writing songs, basically I write songs whenever an idea hits me, in my hotel room, on the road, in the plane.

Avril Lavigne sold a massive amount of albums and she has to top that with her next release. We have four great albums behind us, and it's not going to be as hard to live up to that.

~Kelly Jones

Big shows are more like events and small shows are more like traditional gigs.

~Kelly Jones

We didn't really want to be an overnight success as that brings with it its own problems.

~Kelly Jones

I'm not a betting man.

~Kelly Jones

The press will naturally come and go as it has done with all artists, from David Bowie to Neil Young to U2.

~Kelly Jones

Like all bands, the first two albums are always the ones most written about, and the most covered. When a band gets to their third or fourth album, the story of the band has already been told.

~Kelly Jones

Revising a screenplay is much more frustrating than revising a song because you have to read through the entire work again while you are changing stuff. It is a lot easier to edit a song.

~Kelly Jones

It's better for the listener to interpret their own meanings to the music.

~Kelly Jones

To remain relevant though, I think making great records is the key.
