While countless Americans are pulling together to lend a helping hand, Nancy Pelosi and Harry Reid are pointing fingers in a shameless effort to tear us apart.

~Ken Mehlman

Democratic leaders always seem to blame America first.

~Ken Mehlman

The Democrats' plan for 2006? Take the House and Senate and impeach the president. With our nation at war, is this the kind of Congress you want?

~Ken Mehlman

I am committed to ensure that our 2008 Republican presidential candidates forthrightly address issues of importance to the African-American community.

~Ken Mehlman

Making the case (for same-sex marriage) from a conservative values perspective is an imperative, not an option.

~Ken Mehlman

Our party for the longest time has relied on the votes of white guys. I think that all of these candidates are going to improve our party, our policies, and our nation.

~Ken Mehlman

There's nothing more powerful than coming out and being who you are.

~Ken Mehlman

John Danforth, I thought, was a great senator and did a great job with the United Nations. I think he's a good man. I would respectfully disagree with that.

~Ken Mehlman

I don't think the American people, if you look historically, elect angry candidates.

~Ken Mehlman

For a generation, terrorists learned they could make war on free nations without fear of war in return. On September 12, the terrorists got war in return.

~Ken Mehlman

Conservatives don't need to change core convictions to embrace the growing support for equal rights for gay Americans.
