That's the beauty of song writing. You never know when inspiration will come or how it will hit, you just gotta kinda grasp a hold of it and make sense of it somehow.

~Kimbra

Im so fascinated by the human longing for meaning. The way we relate romantically to each other is so much to do with our longing for meaning as well.

~Kimbra

When you work on an album for three and a half years, you're kind of ready for it to get out there. To have your songs reach people.

~Kimbra

My process is to be by myself when I record. It's quite an emotional performance to pull off when someone else is in the room. I prefer to go away and have my own time with it, bring it in later.

~Kimbra

I want to be the kind of artist who keeps pushing on every album. I don't want to settle on a sound.

~Kimbra

America is definitely something I'm pretty excited about.

~Kimbra

Just try to keep the heart turned outward, as well as having moments inward.

~Kimbra

There's a vulnerability in music but you've also got to protect your sacred place and have a place you can still retire to that no one else knows about. So that's a thing I just try to balance.

~Kimbra

The fun of being in the pop world is you can really play with people's perceptions of what the word pop means.

~Kimbra

. The key to all of that is keeping hold of humility and keeping hold of the people around you, and making sure you stay grounded with your family and friends.

~Kimbra

I like challenging people. I love pop music that can just throw you off.

~Kimbra

All my album artwork is body painting.

~Kimbra

Obviously I don't really go to church any more - no time.

~Kimbra

I'm turning 22, so I want to start getting into work that reflects where I'm at in life now.

~Kimbra

I feel far more connected to the whole band if I can somehow physically respond... with my body.

~Kimbra

I haven't stopped writing which is good. I'm scared to stop completely otherwise it might lead to stagnancy.

~Kimbra

I do like the idea of pulling in different producers to get new perspectives. That's what I did with Vows and I feel it just gives variety and makes for a more exciting journey for the listener.
