The Black woman is the most unprotected, unloved woman on earth...she is the only flower on earth...that grows unwatered.

~Kola Boof

Race means family and all black people whether they like it or not, are family.

~Kola Boof

I appear topless as a way of holding on to my Nilotic culture, and I also do it to taunt those Africans who are ashamed of our original cultural beliefs.

~Kola Boof

Africans believed that the woman's bare breast represented God, the circle of life and the moral cleanliness of human beings.

~Kola Boof

I love cooking for men and making love with them'not just reproductive lovemaking but I like sex for the sake of freaking out with men.

~Kola Boof

While I love Mohammed and Jesus Christ'I reject all men's religions, not just Islam, but Christianity, Judaism and whatever else the men use for a whip.

~Kola Boof

I believe that Christianity trains black people, especially black women, to think like slaves, and I believe that Islam is mainly fueled by its hatred for women.

~Kola Boof

In 1998, I was trained by the SPLA [Sudanese People's Liberation Army] in London how to pretend to be a geologist.

~Kola Boof

In 2004, I went to Israel and gave a speech that resulted in guns and ammunition being given to the South Sudanese rebels, specifically Commanders Athol's and Yaka's armies.

~Kola Boof

By any means necessary, I am for Africa.

~Kola Boof

As for developing a writing style I would say that I tried to copy the pacing of the old movies I loved as a kid.

~Kola Boof

I wrote about my life just as I remembered it. I named names and it's very detailed. Hundreds of Sudanese refugees and people from Africa say that my journey is very similar to theirs.

~Kola Boof

I'm not a 'strong warrior queen' like people think. I spend most of my day cooking and doing things with my sons.

~Kola Boof

I learned English by watching soaps as a kid, and since I don't have any formal education and can't teach at the universities like other literary writers do.

~Kola Boof

Even though I couldn't speak English, there were many times that my black-American parents could read my mind and I could read theirs.

~Kola Boof

As for feminism, I am a womanist more than I'm a feminist.

~Kola Boof

My autobiography is one of the truest, most frankly written books ever published in the western hemisphere.

~Kola Boof

People don't want truth, they just want trash.

~Kola Boof

I'm not at all against white people adopting black children, because we're all human beings who need to give love and be nurtured in safety, but I do think it's better to be adopted by blacks.

~Kola Boof

What makes me angry is that it wasn't me who revealed that I had been with Osama Bin Laden. I originally denied being involved with Osama when the London Guardian threatened to 'out' me.

~Kola Boof

The press doesn't like me, because I am a weirdo to them, so they do everything to create their own fictional Kola Boof.

~Kola Boof

I met rich men and they became my boyfriends. When I was a kept woman it was a relationship.

~Kola Boof

I have never turned a trick in my life, and I just resent the American definitions of 'sex slave' and 'prostitute' so much. I was a mistress!

~Kola Boof

I'm not told what to say by any Republicans and I've never done a personal appearance topless.

~Kola Boof

I feel as if I'm going through a mid-life crisis. I don't feel very attractive and it's like I'm frigid or something. I'm aging and it makes me very sad.

~Kola Boof

My sons are very protective and loving towards me, but I don't know what's in their secret minds about me.

~Kola Boof

I warn black Americans don't get too mixed. A little is fine, but not to the point where you're out of the family.

~Kola Boof

I wasn't allowed to use people's real names, such as my siblings and my children's father, but there's nothing fabricated or untrue in my autobiography.

~Kola Boof

I value men and I don't necessarily want to adopt the man's role, but I do want to see women's humanity honored and respected.

~Kola Boof

Men always liked me, because I was very damaged and unpredictable, my children's father claims that I have multiple personalities, but I don't.

~Kola Boof

I was born to an Arab father and I was born Islamic.
