A successful man is one who makes more money than his wife can spend. A successful woman is one who can find such a man.

~Lana Turner

A gentleman is simply a patient wolf.

~Lana Turner

If you stay away from parties, you're called a snob. If you go, you're an exhibitionist. If you don't talk, you're dumb. If you do talk, you're quarrelsome. Pardon me while I change my nail polish.

~Lana Turner

I would rather lose a good earring than be caught without make-up.

~Lana Turner

I find men terribly exciting, and any girl who says she doesn't is an anemic old maid, a streetwalker, or a saint.

~Lana Turner

How does it happen that something that makes so much sense in the moonlight doesn't make any sense at all in the sunlight?

~Lana Turner

It's said in Hollywood that you should always forgive your enemies - because you never know when you'll have to work with them.

~Lana Turner

My goal was to have one husband and seven children, but it turned out to be the other way around.

~Lana Turner

I'm so gullible. I'm so damn gullible. And I am so sick of me being gullible.

~Lana Turner

Well, I'm going up and up and up - and nobody's going to pull me down!

~Lana Turner

Where wolves live, the forest is healthy

~Lana Turner

The more famous an actress becomes, the less she's allowed to eat. Unless she wants to play people's mothers. And in bad clothes, yet.

~Lana Turner

My life has been a series of emergencies.

~Lana Turner

All men are alike. The approach is different; the result is always the same.

~Lana Turner

Trash is something you get rid of - or disease. I'm not something you get rid of.

~Lana Turner

I expected to have one husband and seven babies. Instead I had seven husbands and one living baby.

~Lana Turner

Fame is one thing, notoriety is another.

~Lana Turner

Humor has been the balm of my life, but it's been reserved for those close to me, not part of the public Lana.

~Lana Turner

The truth is, sex doesn't mean that much to me now.

~Lana Turner

I've always loved a challenge.
