Strength of character means the ability to overcome resentment against others, to hide hurt feelings, and to forgive quickly.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

A sarcastic person has a superiority complex that can be cured only by the honesty of humility.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

It is just as cowardly to judge an absent person as it is wicked to strike a defenseless one. Only the ignorant and narrow-minded gossip, for they speak of persons instead of things.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

Kind words are a creative force, a power that concurs in the building up of all that is good, and energy that showers blessings upon the world.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

Only a kind person is able to judge another justly and to make allowances for his weaknesses. A kind eye, while recognizing defects, sees beyond them.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

Have you not noticed in your past experience that your kind interpretations were almost always truer than your harsh ones?

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

Genuine love will always feel urged to communicate joy - to be a joy-giver. Mankind needs joy.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

Cheerfulness is a very great help in fostering the virtue of charity. Cheerfulness itself is a virtue.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

Nobody needs a smile so much as the one who has none to give. So get used to smiling heart-warming smiles, and you will spread sunshine in a sometimes dreary world.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

If you want to make friends, go out of your way to do things for other people--things that require time, energy, unselfishness, and thoughtfulness.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

A gentleman has his eyes on all those present; he is tender toward the bashful, gentle toward the distant, and merciful toward the absent.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

If, when you charged a person with his faults, you credited him with his virtues too, you would probably like everybody.

~Lawrence G. Lovasik

Do not take yourself too seriously. You have to learn not to be dismayed at making mistakes. No human being can avoid failures.
