You never know what doors are going to open up and why they are going to open up. You've got to be ready to walk through them.

~Lester Holt

You have to go where the story is to report on it. As a journalist, you're essentially running to things that other people are running away from.

~Lester Holt

The biggest thing I worry about is the unsubstantiated story. You have to tell the people what you know -- and acknowledge what you don't know.

~Lester Holt

I think sometimes we lose sight of how powerful we are when we put someone on the news - for good or bad. It can really change people's lives.

~Lester Holt

Race has been a big issue in this [presidency] campaign [2016].

~Lester Holt

Not to get too deep on shaving my mustache, but it was kind of symbolic of, 'This is a moment of liberation, a chance to reinvent yourself.' That's kind of what I did.

~Lester Holt

Candidates [Hillary Clinton and Donald trump], we look forward to hearing you articulate your policies and your positions, as well as your visions and your values.

~Lester Holt

I am honored to have this role [of the moderator], but this evening belongs to the candidates and, just as important, to the American people.

~Lester Holt

You look at the Middle East, it's a total mess.

~Lester Holt

Stop-and-frisk was ruled unconstitutional in New York, because it largely singled out black and Hispanic young men.
