Our children give us the opportunity to become the parents we always wished we'd had.

~Louise Hart

The best thing to spend on your children is your time.

~Louise Hart

The Golden Rule of Parenting is; do unto your children as you wish your parents had done unto you!

~Louise Hart

Self-esteem is as important to our well-being as legs are to a table. It is essential for physical and mental health and for happiness.

~Louise Hart

Bringing a child into the world is the greatest act of hope there is.

~Louise Hart

Doing too much for others (often at their own expense), many persons are more 'human doings' than human beings.

~Louise Hart

We make butterflies by feeding caterpillars, not by trying to paste wings on them. Kids need to like themselves the way they are, and we can help them develop a positive self-image.

~Louise Hart

We all enter the world with fairly simple needs: to be protected, to be nurtured, to be loved unconditionally, and to belong.

~Louise Hart

If you tell children they are bad, that's what they believe they are--and that's probably what they will become.
