Happiness is something that comes from our own hearts, not from other people.

~Lynn Austin

Our trials are supposed to turn us toward God, but we whine and complain and wish someone would turn down the fire so we could have our old life back the way it was.

~Lynn Austin

Don't be fooled by strength you can see," he said at last. "Yahweh often hides His power in the simple things, the weak things, and so His strength seems foolish in man's eyes.

~Lynn Austin

Smooth seas don't produce skillful sailors.' It's the rough waters that train us to be His disciples. He uses the turbulent times in our lives to prepare us for His purposes-if we'll let Him.

~Lynn Austin

So often I have felt alone in my journey, yet I've been afraid to let anyone see my fear and weakness.

~Lynn Austin

Smooth seas don't produce skillful sailors.

~Lynn Austin

No terrain is too bleak, no distance too far that it will stop God from rescuing His own.

~Lynn Austin

Depression, I've learned, is sometimes caused by anger that we keep locked up inside.

~Lynn Austin

Scriptures were just words on a page and my prayers failed to lift.

~Lynn Austin

The land promised to Abraham and his descendants is once again theirs. God always keeps His promises. Even in times of cataclysmic upheaval and change, God's love and faithfulness are unchanging.

~Lynn Austin

Besides re-arming myself with joy, I need to know the holes in my defenses, the places where I'm vulnerable and where the enemy has successfully attacked me before.

~Lynn Austin

That's absurd," I said with a little laugh. "Nobody can read too much. That's like saying someone breathes too much.

~Lynn Austin

You pray. And you allow the Lord to be your strength. Remember the Lord doesn't give you strength. He is your strength.

~Lynn Austin

Joy explodes throughout the book of Psalms like fireworks, and is the most potent anti-missile defense system there is.

~Lynn Austin

The journey has been a parody of my life recently: rushing, waiting, wandering, feeling lost and losing sleep, wondering if I'm getting anywhere.

~Lynn Austin

[God] wants us to work with Him, honey. Not for Him.
