The day before the anniversary of D-Day, we lost a man who was equaled by few and surpassed by none as a leader in the cause of freedom: Ronald Reagan.

~Mac Thornberry

No other date on the calendar more potently symbolizes all that our nation stands for than the Fourth of July.

~Mac Thornberry

Now, forty years after his passing, Winston Churchill is still quoted, read, revered, and referred to as much, if not more, than when he was alive.

~Mac Thornberry

We should start by allowing drilling in Alaska's National Wildlife Refuge. It can provide billions of barrels of recoverable oil and trillions of cubic feet of recoverable natural gas.

~Mac Thornberry

The death tax robs parents of the opportunity to pass something along to their children, and it is responsible for destroying a lot of family-owned businesses.

~Mac Thornberry

In sum, we took energy for granted, assuming when we flipped the switch, the lights would go on and assuming that there would always be plenty of cheap fuel for our vehicles.

~Mac Thornberry

Energy is necessary for economic growth, for a better quality of life, and for human progress.

~Mac Thornberry

We should restore a proper balance in environmental regulation and energy production that is based on common sense, not political agendas.

~Mac Thornberry

For more than two centuries since winning our own freedom, we the people of the United States have repeatedly answered the call to lead the quest for freedom around the globe.

~Mac Thornberry

Mr. Speaker, I agree with those who say that the Global War on Terrorism is actually a Global War of Ideas and that terrorism is one of the tactics used in that War.

~Mac Thornberry

The challenge we have in the war on terrorism is looking around for those pieces that matter and trying to fit them together.

~Mac Thornberry

I know of no serious proposals that would change the way Social Security operates for today's seniors.

~Mac Thornberry

My view is that when in doubt, society should err on the side of life.
