As long as we are not ourselves, we will try to be what other people are.

~Malidoma Patrice Some

Healing comes when the individual remembers his or her identityâ€”the purpose chosen in the world of ancestral wisdomâ€”and reconnects with that world of Spirit.

~Malidoma Patrice Some

One can say, 'Teach me what you know,' but the better request is, 'Teach me about what teaches you.'

~Malidoma Patrice Some

The power of nature exists in its silence. Human words cannot encode the meaning because human language has access only to the shadow of meaning.

~Malidoma Patrice Some

The spiritual thirst that is latent in everybody can never come to a place of fulfillment unless people begin to think of each other as potential brothers and sisters.

~Malidoma Patrice Some

Our souls do not like stagnation. Our souls aspire toward growth, that is, toward remembering all that we have forgotten due to our trip to this place, the earth.
