I think directing is part play, part work, not just all work, because I think you always have to play. I think that's ultimately why I got into making movies, is because I love to play.

~Marc Forster

What I'm passionate about is telling stories which mean something to me.

~Marc Forster

One of the main reasons I wanted to work on 'World War Z' was because I'm a huge fan of the book, and I love the idea of taking a non-linear story and creating a three-act structure out of it.

~Marc Forster

Three days after my brother died, my father was in the hospital. He just did not want to live anymore. Before, he was fighting and loving life.

~Marc Forster

I realized that a lot of the great directors that I admire from [Ingmar] Bergman to [Fredrico] Fellini re always shooting, then going into the editing room, and shooting again.

~Marc Forster

I always wanted to do an action movie, not particularly Bond.

~Marc Forster

I think people, unfortunately, do live in constant fear.

~Marc Forster

I always try to stay objective, and to remove myself from the process and look at the film again.

~Marc Forster

Some of the greatest directors never got an Oscar, like Kubrick, or Hitchcock. For me, personally, I think the body of work is more important than winning an Oscar.

~Marc Forster

You do a lot of press, but getting to talk and discuss movies with your peers is the best and most fulfilling part.

~Marc Forster

For me, The Kite Runner became about a guy who's emotionally shut down because he hasn't confronted his past.

~Marc Forster

The key thing is that you start every film from sort of a blank page, almost like you discover it like a child discovers a new world.

~Marc Forster

On Stranger Than Fiction, the script was so good that I stuck to every line because it was just such brilliant writing from Zach Helm that I felt like I really just want to shoot the page.
