I believe that there is a love that moves the sun and the other stars.

~Margaret Wertheim

If I could do anything in my life and be remembered for anything, I would like to be remembered for helping the world see the value of physical engagement with ideas.

~Margaret Wertheim

Female physicists, astronomers and mathematicians are up against more than 2,000 years of convention that has long portrayed these fields as inherently male.

~Margaret Wertheim

Nature doesn't feel compelled to stick to a mathematically precise algorithm; in fact, nature probably can't stick to an algorithm.

~Margaret Wertheim

One of the great sources of employment for people with Ph.D.s in geometry is the animation industry.

~Margaret Wertheim

All gradients of reality, all existential distinctions, have finally been annihilated.

~Margaret Wertheim

Nature rarely does anything mathematically perfect, and naturalism results from imperfections and deviations.

~Margaret Wertheim

Computers are very powerful tools, but in the simulated world of the computer, everything has to be calculated.

~Margaret Wertheim
