

Martha Grimes Quotes

Writing, Thinking, Memories, Dog, Idyllic, Silence, Children, Illusion, Habit, Fours, Frogs, Talking, Rooms, Historical Novels, Romance, London, Motivational, Saws, Bigs, Inspirational

Before you hate something you should try to understand it.

~Martha Grimes

Writing is an antisocial act.

~Martha Grimes

We don't know who we are until we see what we can do.

~Martha Grimes

You can't be blocked if you just keep on writing words. Any words. People who get 'blocked' make the mistake of thinking they have to write good words.

~Martha Grimes

Arnold was a dog's dog. Whenever he shuffled along walks and through alleyways, he always gave the impression of being on to something big.

~Martha Grimes

Silence is a way of saying: we do not have to entertain each other; we are okay as we are.

~Martha Grimes

The English inn stands permanently planted at the confluence of the roads of history, memory, and romance.

~Martha Grimes

Children can ask what adults don't dare to because we don't want to admit we're scared and we don't really want to hear the answers.

~Martha Grimes

Talking's just a nervous habit.

~Martha Grimes

Most people see what they want to, or at least what they expect to.

~Martha Grimes

writers just kept on staring at nothing until they wrote something. Might be two minutes or two weeks.

~Martha Grimes

I cleared my throat - it isn't frogs you get in your throat; it's memories.

~Martha Grimes

An idyllic childhood is probably illusion.

~Martha Grimes

Related Links:

- Writing Quotes
- Thinking Quotes
- Memories Quotes
- Dog Quotes
- Idyllic Quotes
- Silence Quotes
- Children Quotes
- Illusion Quotes
- Habit Quotes
- Fours Quotes
- Frogs Quotes
- Talking Quotes
- Rooms Quotes
- Historical Novels Quotes
- Romance Quotes
- London Quotes
- Motivational Quotes
- Saws Quotes
- Bigs Quotes
- Inspirational Quotes