You, my lord, are the ending of all true stories.

~Martine Leavitt

Demonstrate talent, said Grandmother often to me, and you will still be loved by a husband when beauty has faded.

~Martine Leavitt

Papa loves you with a dying and infernal love," the youngest girl said. "Undying," the eldest girl corrected. "And eternal.

~Martine Leavitt

It is life that hurts you not death.

~Martine Leavitt

Had I truly thought I would not die when he kissed me? But I did. For a moment the breath and life went out of me and there was no time and no tomorrow but only my lips against his.

~Martine Leavitt

Each man, when he dies, sees the landscape of his own soul.
