

Mary Stewart Quotes

Men, People, Thinking, Past, Believe, Light, Art, Sleep, Carrie, Hope, Knows, Anger, Two, Fall, Circles, Power, Fear, Knowing, Party, Way

The best way of forgetting how you think you feel is to concentrate on what you know you know.

~Mary Stewart

The mills of God work like lightning compared with the law.

~Mary Stewart

The gods only go with you if you put yourself in their path. And that takes courage.

~Mary Stewart

I reached for sleep and drew it round me like a blanket muffling pain and thought together in the merciful dark

~Mary Stewart

Every life has a death, and every light a shadow. Be content to stand in the light, and let the shadow fall where it will.

~Mary Stewart

You never know how you'll turn out till you've been down to half a dollar and no prospects.

~Mary Stewart

Where two Greeks are gathered together, there will be at least three political parties represented, and possibly more.

~Mary Stewart

To plant a garden is the chief of the arts of peace.

~Mary Stewart

I knew that I had turned my world back to cinders, sunk my lovely ship with my own stupid, wicked hands.

~Mary Stewart

The place for truth is not in the facts of a novel; it is in the feelings.

~Mary Stewart

I can say 'reduce your stress level' until I'm blue in the face.

~Mary Stewart

It is never wise to turn aside from knowing, however the knowing comes.

~Mary Stewart

Folks will say anything, and next time round they'll believe it.

~Mary Stewart

Take love easy, as the leaves grow on the trees.

~Mary Stewart

I'm very much to blame for not seeing it before, but who on earth goes about suspecting an impossible outlandish thing like murder? That's something that happens in books, not among people you know.

~Mary Stewart

The essence of wisdom is to know when to be doing, and when it's useless even to try

~Mary Stewart

I sometimes think it's a mistake to have been happy when one was a child. One should always want to go on, not back.

~Mary Stewart

The sense of smell is the hair-trigger of memory.

~Mary Stewart

Perhaps loneliness had nothing to do with place or circumstance; perhaps it was in you; yourself. Perhaps, wherever you were, you took your little circle of loneliness with you.

~Mary Stewart

I suppose one gets to know men quickest by the things they take for granted.

~Mary Stewart

But I have noticed this about ambitious men, or men in power, that they fear even the slightest and least likely threat to it.

~Mary Stewart

It is not true that women cannot keep secrets. Where they love, they can be trusted to death and beyond, against all sense and reason. It is their weakness, and their great strength.

~Mary Stewart

It does not do to neglect the gods of a place, whoever they may be. In the end, they are all one.

~Mary Stewart

Every man carries the seed of his own death, and you will not be more than a man. You will have everything; you cannot have more.

~Mary Stewart

Sometimes, I think, our impulses come not from the past, but from the future.

~Mary Stewart

Well, what was luck for if it was never to be tempted?

~Mary Stewart

I had always been content to know that there was more in the living world than we could hope to understand.

~Mary Stewart

There are few men more superstitious than soldiers. They are, after all, the men who live closest to death.

~Mary Stewart

Related Links:

- Men Quotes
- People Quotes
- Thinking Quotes
- Past Quotes
- Believe Quotes
- Light Quotes
- Art Quotes
- Sleep Quotes
- Carrie Quotes
- Hope Quotes
- Knows Quotes
- Anger Quotes
- Two Quotes
- Fall Quotes
- Circles Quotes
- Power Quotes
- Fear Quotes
- Knowing Quotes
- Party Quotes
- Way Quotes