Animals are always goddesses and gods, like the god Anubis. He's the one who's accompanying the souls to the next life, and he's the one who decides if they will be able to cross or not.

~Michal Rovner

Animals are also the ones that are guarding the graves, and they are the ones who communicate between the dead and the alive.

~Michal Rovner

I always start with reality, in anything I do, everything I do, I always start from something real.

~Michal Rovner

I go and film 50 people in Israel, 50 people in Russia, and 50 people in Romania, in Paris, because I really like to get some particles of something real.

~Michal Rovner

We see everything, we see what's going on in Syria, we see what's going on with the refugees. What can you do about it? And we have to do something.

~Michal Rovner

You can feel that something terrible is going on in another place in the world, and it's the other, it's not you. It's always there, it's them. But this them is also you.

~Michal Rovner

I think that the world is in a very serious decline - very, very serious.

~Michal Rovner

We are getting used to levels of violence, we are getting used to seeing these horrific things going on all the time. I think it's tough. It's rough.

~Michal Rovner

That's what animals do all of the time; they watch out, they watch out, and I saw, "This is us now." Us, the world, we are watching out.

~Michal Rovner

I usually go to bed early to read. I read and I always say that I'm not a "bohemian artist;" I need to read for one or two hours in the evening, and the quiet, so I don't hang out a lot.

~Michal Rovner

I go back to [the idea] that we are avoiding all of these unknowns, we're avoiding the night - most of us - we're avoiding the encounters, but we're also afraid to deal with something unknown, unseen.

~Michal Rovner

I carry some kind of consideration and weight and observations about what is going on in the world, but I don't go to execute it.

~Michal Rovner

I like Palestinians in the morning when they come and we talk but in the evening, who knows, maybe they don't know that I'm nice.

~Michal Rovner

The night is there, we're trying to ignore the night, the night was always there as children.
