Although I miss my family and friends when I'm away from Amsterdam, I've never had that feeling of missing a city like I have with New Orleans. Especially for the music.

~Michiel Huisman

When it comes to being a techie, I'm always precise about the things that I want to know. I love understanding how things work.

~Michiel Huisman

The great actors, like Cary Grant, and the gentlemanliness that they portray in the movies is something that I try to keep in mind.

~Michiel Huisman

The Age of Adaline was very special because it marks for me the first male lead on a proper Hollywood production.

~Michiel Huisman

The funny thing is, whenever I'm working on something, I kind of forget there's a lot of people watching. It makes it easier to be in the moment and to tell a story as well as possible.

~Michiel Huisman

I started acting as a kid and doing advertising campaigns. I was probably 8 years old, and I really liked the attention.

~Michiel Huisman

I'm always repeating myself. You never just do a scene once, you do it an insane amount of times.

~Michiel Huisman

Stepping on set is always overwhelming.

~Michiel Huisman

I always used to be more of a city guy, and more and more I'm starting to enjoy being in nature.

~Michiel Huisman

I respect motorcycles so much. They've come such a long way. It's amazing!

~Michiel Huisman

I think it's hard to convince an audience of some sort of chemistry if you really don't get along.

~Michiel Huisman

There was not an industry for child actors. I never really made any money. It was all about fun for me.

~Michiel Huisman

I went on to host a kids' program from when I was around 10 until 15. In some ways I'm a child actor.

~Michiel Huisman

I think once everything is in place, once you've kind of wrapped your head around the story and the character, it's very liberating and you can start doing things like you would do.
