Aces are larger than life and greater than mountains.

~Mike Caro

If you speak the truth, you spoil the game.

~Mike Caro

Every conscious act requires risk. Every conscious act requires decision. Put these two facts together and you realize that the secret to life is not to avoid gambling but to gamble well.

~Mike Caro

You win some, you lose some, and you keep it to yourself.

~Mike Caro

As long as people allow themselves to be shocked, outraged or disgusted, there will be those who see that this happens, just so they can watch.

~Mike Caro

Don't leave it to the law of averages to make you break even.

~Mike Caro

I am a lucky player; a powerful winning force surrounds me.

~Mike Caro

In the beginning, everything was even money.

~Mike Caro

False hope is sometimes much worse and sometimes much better than no hope.

~Mike Caro

It's hard to convince a winner that he's losing.

~Mike Caro

I've seen the future, and I survived the test of time.

~Mike Caro

Inside the mind of 'America's Mad Genius' is not necessarily a place you want to visit.

~Mike Caro

After you do one thing, you've got one thing done.

~Mike Caro

Adventurers tend to prance about the ladder of success, fearing less the sensation of a great fall than the humility of hanging idle.

~Mike Caro

I have nothing against women. Some of my best wives were women.

~Mike Caro

For any single thing you can do, there is one person who is best in the world. Usually it is Mike Caro.

~Mike Caro

All losers exaggerate because they want you to know how bad they feel.

~Mike Caro

When you start somewhere, you've started.

~Mike Caro

Many gamblers think they're being singled out by fate as a target for cruel jokes. They feel they alone in all the universe are being tortured, experimented upon by some unknown force.

~Mike Caro

If an opponent won't watch you bet, then you probably shouldn't.
