The problem is we bear grudges that go a thousand years into the past. Really, I could find people who begrudge the Greeks for doing awful things to the Bulgarians more than a thousand years ago.

~Miroslav Penkov

The clash of religion. We've had to coexist for hundreds of years in Bulgaria, in the Balkans, and we still don't get along. It's a reason for so much tragedy.

~Miroslav Penkov

In certain places, not always, there are moments where I tried to convey in English a sense of foreignness. I wanted the reader to get the sense that another language is being spoken.

~Miroslav Penkov

When I was writing in Bulgarian, I could hide behind beautiful prose.

~Miroslav Penkov

Words physically have power to bring things into existence.
