We're born alone and we die alone, I accept that. But why, God, do we have to be alone in the middle?

~Morgan Llywelyn

happy women get softer and rounder.

~Morgan Llywelyn

If you would have peace, genuine peace, you must accept all the aspects of your personality and learn to be comfortable with them.

~Morgan Llywelyn

I'm Irish!...When I feel well I feel better than anyone, when I am in pain I yell at the top of my lungs, and when I am dead I shall be deader than anybody.

~Morgan Llywelyn

Waiting is worse than knowing. Grief rends the heart cleanly, that it may begin to heal; waiting shreds the spirit.

~Morgan Llywelyn

Wine could become a place rather than a beverage.

~Morgan Llywelyn

Intuition is the voice of the spirit within you.

~Morgan Llywelyn

The pain we bring to others we cannot escape ourselves.

~Morgan Llywelyn

He took her into his arms again, using all his strength to be gentle, and let his lips touch hers so lightly he could hardly feel it.

~Morgan Llywelyn

Bodies wear out to remind us they are temporary, and force us to spend more thought on our spirits

~Morgan Llywelyn

There is a cruelty that lurks in some men's souls which is only released when they have other men in their power.

~Morgan Llywelyn

There is no disgrace in peace. There can never be dishonor in peace.

~Morgan Llywelyn

teaching meant for the hands enters most easily through the eyes.

~Morgan Llywelyn

You have no enemy until you make one.

~Morgan Llywelyn

Dreams can be relentless tyrants.

~Morgan Llywelyn

The one power a man has that cannot be stripped from him is the power to do nothing.
