It wasn't so much that I was afraid of the place itself, but I was afraid of the creatures who masqueraded as people.

~Natsuo Kirino

My talent was the uncompromising ability to feel spite.

~Natsuo Kirino

In order to induce the process of decay, water is necessary. I think that, in the case of women, men are the water.

~Natsuo Kirino

A woman who does not know herself has no choice other than to live with other people's evaluations. But no one can adapt perfectly to public opinion. And herein lies the source of their destruction.

~Natsuo Kirino

I suppose I'm the one responsible for destroying myself.

~Natsuo Kirino

I'm this superphilosophical kind of person. Stuck in a prison of abstract ideas and overpowering emotions, I have this personality that makes it really hard to survive.

~Natsuo Kirino

I was in a self-induced depression. Welcome to me Real World.

~Natsuo Kirino

If people can't stand being alone, they have no choice but to die

~Natsuo Kirino

Let's face it: the world is twisted. And rotten.

~Natsuo Kirino

Friends are a weird thing. It seems like they know all about you, but then they don't understand you at all.

~Natsuo Kirino

I'm still afraid of being totally honest. I'm more afraid of this than dying.

~Natsuo Kirino

Kids lose their trust in the parents they love, but still accept them, so they end up not trusting themselves anymore.

~Natsuo Kirino

A woman who does not know herself has no choice other than to live with other people's evaluations.

~Natsuo Kirino

And what if, in order to keep on living, I have to continue to accept myself?

~Natsuo Kirino

I decided then and there I was never going to have kids.
