I didn't want to wear a checked shirt and grow a mustache - that's what you had to do, and everyone did.

~Neil Tennant

You should always celebrate your successes because someone else will celebrate your failures.

~Neil Tennant

It's fundamental that what we do only exists in our own universe. When you like Pet Shop Boys, you are in our world.

~Neil Tennant

She's a very charismatic character, and she holds the whole play together.

~Neil Tennant

When I was I younger I didn't want to be gay. Not because I was scared of the sexual thing; I didn't want to be a clone. Now this was in the late '70s.

~Neil Tennant

We shouldn't feel restricted by our sexuality, and our sexuality doesn't have to be a cultural choice. That's an amazing variety of music within those five main performers.

~Neil Tennant

We've been working on a new album, which is going to come out next spring, which is very different, a change of style for us - it's going to be almost like rock music.

~Neil Tennant

We thought it would be great to see if you could put pop music back into musical theater.

~Neil Tennant

I've got the brains, you've got the looks, let's make lots of money

~Neil Tennant

A lot of what used to be known as gay culture - broadly speaking, homoeroticism and being camp - has been brought into mainstream culture. I think we should be moving to an era where it's just sex.

~Neil Tennant

The first song is called 'London.' It's about two Russian soldiers who desert the Russian army and escape to London, where they indulge in a life of crime.

~Neil Tennant

I think the world should be one community.

~Neil Tennant

I think we've come a long way since then. The big thing that changed was when ecstasy came along in Britain.

~Neil Tennant

Because some people have sex with people of the same sex, an entire culture has been created, broadly speaking, out of oppression. Which in a rational world would not be an issue.

~Neil Tennant

I think there's an element where people get very comfortable in their ghetto. Which is fair enough.

~Neil Tennant

The big gay clubs like Heaven started having mixed nights in the late '80s.
