I write out of enthusiasm. Momentum that comes from a new idea. Eagerness to explore. I also write out of fear - fear of losing an idea - fear of feeling stagnant.

~Nick Antosca

I feel like having an actual taxidermy-ed mammal would get gross, like its hair would get dirty and stuff.

~Nick Antosca

I was tired of working in an office and I wanted to make a living telling stories. There are not many people who find a way to do this.

~Nick Antosca

Sometimes I try to meditate, which I hope will help, but it doesn't really. But lots of times my dreams have the seed of an intriguing story.

~Nick Antosca

Horror is so basic. You'd get an adrenaline jolt from watching your mom get gored by a woolly mammoth. A horror movie gives you the adrenaline without having to have your mom get gored.

~Nick Antosca

I love horror movies. I consider myself a horror author, sometimes.

~Nick Antosca

Fiction and screenwriting blend for me. I feel like being a TV writer/screenwriter has definitely made my fiction writing better, although I have less time to do it.

~Nick Antosca

The Shield made me realize there were great opportunities for writers in TV.

~Nick Antosca

We're lucky to be in the middle of a TV renaissance. It's the healthiest storytelling medium in our culture.

~Nick Antosca

I own some bugs encased in lucite or something. I also have a big cat's eye - a fake one - made for a taxidermist. I really like animals.

~Nick Antosca

Yeah, most guys don't like to think about going to a bar with a girlfriend and watching her leave with someone else.

~Nick Antosca

I rarely exercise at all, except I have some hand weights that I'll lift idly while I'm watching TV. I did do some push-ups last week and somehow hurt my shoulder.
