

Norm MacDonald Quotes

Men, People, Thinking, Guy, Love, Knows, Sex, Real, Two, Would Be, Sports, Hate, Giving, Disappointment, Advice, Desire, Gay, Kids, Ambition, Shows

They say that if you're afraid of homosexuals, it means that deep down inside you're actually a homosexual yourself. That worries me because I'm afraid of dogs.

~Norm MacDonald

I don't know the difference between a hippie and a hipster but, it's fun to watch either one of them get beat up.

~Norm MacDonald

Yeah man, they call gambling a disease, but it's the only disease where you can win a bunch of money.

~Norm MacDonald

Note to self: no matter how bad life gets, there's always beer.

~Norm MacDonald

When I hear a guy lost a battle to cancer, that really did bother me, that that's a term. It implies that he failed and that somebody else that defeated cancer is heroic and courageous.

~Norm MacDonald

I'm thankful for women. I think women are more intelligent than men. Also, without women, there would be no cookies.

~Norm MacDonald

Note to self... Sex with blow-up doll is not as good as advertised.

~Norm MacDonald

You know, with Hitler, the more I learn about that guy, the more I don't care for him.

~Norm MacDonald

You ever see 'The Dating Game'? That's a weird game show. The prize on that show: another contestant. Talk about cheap.

~Norm MacDonald

The first principle of solid wisdom is discretion, without it all the erudition of life is merely bagatelle.

~Norm MacDonald

I always told everybody the perfect joke would be where the setup and punch line were identical.

~Norm MacDonald

Violent people usually express their love of a thing by their hatred of its opposite.

~Norm MacDonald

There are two indiscretions that generally distinguish fools: a readiness to report whatever they hear, and a practice of communicating with secrecy what is commonly understood.

~Norm MacDonald

There are two things which a man should scrupulously avoid: giving advice that he would not follow, and asking advice when he is determined to pursue his own opinion.

~Norm MacDonald

In math, you could get 100 percent. It was very fair. That's what I liked about math. You could figure it out, and the teacher couldn't have a stupid opinion about it.

~Norm MacDonald

My dad died, and my grandfather died, and my great-grandfather died. And the guy before him, I don't know. Probably died.

~Norm MacDonald

All my life's about is cracking up people and them cracking me up and trying not to think about dying. That doesn't cost very much money.

~Norm MacDonald

The praise we seek for our own virtues sometimes tempts us to flatter the imperfections of other men.

~Norm MacDonald

I got my computer. The great thing about the computer is that you only need enough money to buy a computer and some food, and you're all right. I don't have to go to premiÃres.

~Norm MacDonald

I think clever people think that poor people are stupid.

~Norm MacDonald

Instead of loving your enemies, have no enemies to love.

~Norm MacDonald

A great cause of evil in the world is that men seldom think themselves criminal if they offer the same injustice to others that has been successfully practiced on themselves.

~Norm MacDonald

There are two things at which most men are grieved: when their faults are exposed, and when their virtues are concealed.

~Norm MacDonald

It is vain to complain of fortune while we fail in policy and conduct.

~Norm MacDonald

I'm a huge sports fan but have no interest in minutiae. I don't remember who won Super Bowls five years ago or listen to sports talk radio.

~Norm MacDonald

Many people are skeptical about marriage of Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Pressley. They say, Lisa Marie is more of a sit at home type, while Michael Jackson is more of a homosexual pedophile.

~Norm MacDonald

We advise others better than ourselves.

~Norm MacDonald

With the ambitious, the failure of one expedient is the suggestion of another; but with the irresolute, defeat usually occasions abandonment of purpose.

~Norm MacDonald

In estimating the adversities of life, we would seldom have much reason to complain of the evils we suffer, did we understand the dangers we daily escape.

~Norm MacDonald

They that are fated to be fools, have one consolation, that they are fated also to be ignorant of it.

~Norm MacDonald

Ignorance is better than knowledge misapplied.

~Norm MacDonald

The joy a person is usually seen to express at the conversion of another to his opinion is seldom more than the impulse of egotistical satisfaction at being considered worthy of didactic imitation.

~Norm MacDonald

Enjoyment inflames love in some men, and extinguishes it in others: the wind that assists large vessels, upsets small ones.

~Norm MacDonald

Hypocrisy is the outward acknowledgment of inward shame.

~Norm MacDonald

He that searches for praise will often find contempt.

~Norm MacDonald

It is often better to be restricted to necessity than unconfined in the measure of our desires: prosperity destroys more individuals than adversity ruins.

~Norm MacDonald

Reason is always weak where prejudice is strong.

~Norm MacDonald

Chastity is oftener owing to diffidence and shame, than to fortitude of reason or virtue.

~Norm MacDonald

A suspicious person is the rival of him that deceives, both seem to practice a knowledge of cunning device, and equable sense of disengenuous merit.

~Norm MacDonald

We often suffer more from our fears, than from the dangers of our situation.

~Norm MacDonald

They're like "You're an alcoholic." I go "No, I'm not." and then-apparently that's what alcoholics say too, you know?

~Norm MacDonald

I generally have a real strong idea or a strong punchline, and I just try to get to it by rambling around, as I don't like to memorize words.

~Norm MacDonald

The beginning of wisdom is the knowledge of folly.

~Norm MacDonald

Most men appear wiser in their doubts than in their belief.

~Norm MacDonald

Envy, like a false mirror, distorts the symmetry of the sweetest form.

~Norm MacDonald

The most frequent cause of regret for what we have done is because its effects interfere with what we would do.

~Norm MacDonald

All that weak people learn from disappointment, is less confidence in future enterprise.

~Norm MacDonald

Some people are so much afraid of being deceived, that they never venture to trust; like misers, their avarice destroys their gain.

~Norm MacDonald

Flattery succeeds best on minds previously occupied by conceit.

~Norm MacDonald

Liberty, like health, appears most precious when lost.

~Norm MacDonald

RIP Amy Winehouse. We lost a true heroin addict today.

~Norm MacDonald

We would seldom be deceived by flattery, did our own conceit not promote the delusion.

~Norm MacDonald

This would have been a great game to watch if we didn't have any money on it.

~Norm MacDonald

The man that does not fear punishment, little regards crime.

~Norm MacDonald

As evacuation eases the body, so occasional ejection of passion seems to appease the agonies of the soul, and dispose to tranquility the agitations of the heart.

~Norm MacDonald

Kenny G has a Christmas album out this year. Hey, happy birthday Jesus! Hope you like crap!

~Norm MacDonald

Pulp Fiction is a, uh, gritty, urban satire. Pump Friction is a uh-uh, a bunch of uh, dudes and ladies having dirty sex.

~Norm MacDonald

The character of giving advice often makes us accountable for the conduct of those we advise.

~Norm MacDonald

I guess [Richard] Pryor was that good. I never saw him in a theater, but I imagine he was that good, because he was such a phenomenal actor.

~Norm MacDonald

I don't care for sex. I find it an embarrassing, dull exercise. I prefer sports, where you can win.

~Norm MacDonald

Were there no fools, there would be no flatterers.

~Norm MacDonald

You can't love your team without hating another team.

~Norm MacDonald

I'm not gay, so I don't know much about Broadway musicals.

~Norm MacDonald

In love, we are best pleased when we please others.

~Norm MacDonald

Some men mistake generosity for charity: these flatter themselves that they are giving gratuitously, whilst they are merely rewarding secret services offered their vanity.

~Norm MacDonald

A man's enemies are those he should endeavor first to make his friends.

~Norm MacDonald

The standard of morals is as variable as morals themselves; of which every nation has a different code, and every custom a different reading.

~Norm MacDonald

I have a little bit of an out-of-body experience where I enjoy the scenario, and I really do like seeing a crowd turn into a mob, and I do nothing to stop it. People can become really dangerous.

~Norm MacDonald

I've shown people Richard Pryor who've never seen him, and most of them don't like him.

~Norm MacDonald

Scientists believe they may have discovered a primitive form of life on Jupiter's moon Europa. That primitive form of life? You guessed it, Frank Stallone.

~Norm MacDonald

The young compliment their greatness on the number of their friends; the old, on the confidence of them.

~Norm MacDonald

Though you may be last to discover your follies, be always first to correct them.

~Norm MacDonald

Many frequently change their principles, but seldom their practices.

~Norm MacDonald

Comedy is surprises, so if you're intending to make somebody laugh and they don't laugh, that's funny.

~Norm MacDonald

Our passions may be compared to certain slaves--the more severity we show them, the better they obey us.

~Norm MacDonald

It is better to be idle than employed in ill.

~Norm MacDonald

Last Christmas, I got the worst gift a guy ever gave me. He gave me a lottery ticket... what's the guy even thinking there. Here you go... nothing! Merry Christmas! It's nothing!

~Norm MacDonald

I don't know anything about politics. Like, zero. Nothing.

~Norm MacDonald

Some men are tempted to violate secrecy from the uneasiness secrecy gives them, and others, merely to impress you with the extent of their confidence.

~Norm MacDonald

When people told the audience that [Sam Kinison] was good, he was accepted after that.

~Norm MacDonald

It is easier to hate those we love, than love those whom we have hated.

~Norm MacDonald

Education makes some men wiser, others more ridiculous and foolish!

~Norm MacDonald

If you're looking for the suspect in a suicide bombing, here's a clue: Look for the dead guy.

~Norm MacDonald

I've been in theaters. Like Brian Regan, who I love - loved him so much more when he did the Improvs. And then in a big theater - nobody's that good.

~Norm MacDonald

If you watch that show and you didn't know it was called Seinfeld, you'd think it was called 'The George Costanza Show'.

~Norm MacDonald

The vanity of being asked advice often makes us confirm the opinion of those that consult us.

~Norm MacDonald

I don't have any ambition.

~Norm MacDonald

We are happy at the respect others pay our favorites, because we consider it a lively confirmation of our own choice, and as so much homage reflected on ourselves.

~Norm MacDonald

The reason we have few friends in adversity, is, because we have no true ones in prosperity.

~Norm MacDonald

Your worst and most dangerous enemy is the person that injures you under the pretensions of friendship.

~Norm MacDonald

If you desire praise or esteem, endeavor to merit it.

~Norm MacDonald

Few people love with the violence they hate.

~Norm MacDonald

Imprudent restrictions often force youth farther than enticement would carry them; and careless limitation is frequently worse than no injunction.

~Norm MacDonald

Few are more unhappy than those who have great ambition, but little energy to urge it into activity.

~Norm MacDonald

It is necessary to be tolerant, in order to be tolerated.

~Norm MacDonald

Proper respect to others is the most prudent rule of directing the measure of reverence due to ourselves.

~Norm MacDonald

If you cannot patiently bear correction, endeavor to avoid fault.

~Norm MacDonald

In love, first please the eye, then win the heart.

~Norm MacDonald

In terms of merit, sports has mathematical statistics. That's how you know who the best player is.

~Norm MacDonald

I never had any interest in sitcoms or motion pictures or anything like that.

~Norm MacDonald

Related Links:

- Men Quotes
- People Quotes
- Thinking Quotes
- Guy Quotes
- Love Quotes
- Knows Quotes
- Sex Quotes
- Real Quotes
- Two Quotes
- Would Be Quotes
- Sports Quotes
- Hate Quotes
- Giving Quotes
- Disappointment Quotes
- Advice Quotes
- Desire Quotes
- Gay Quotes
- Kids Quotes
- Ambition Quotes
- Shows Quotes