Death is the end of a stage, not the end of the journey. The road stretches on beyond our comprehension.

~Oliver Lodge

A fish probably has no means of apprehending the existence of water; it is too deeply immersed in it.

~Oliver Lodge

Death is not extinction. Neither the soul nor the body is extinguished or put out of existence.

~Oliver Lodge

In other cases, when the medium becomes entranced, the demonstration of a communicator's separate intelligence may become stronger and the sophistication less.

~Oliver Lodge

Death is not a foe, but an inevitable adventure.

~Oliver Lodge

Matter moves, but Ether is strained.

~Oliver Lodge

Any person without invincible prejudice who had the same experience would come to the same broad conclusion, viz., that things hitherto held impossible do actually occur.

~Oliver Lodge

The properties which differentiate living matter from any kind of inorganic imitation may be instinctively felt, but can hardly be formulated without expert knowledge.

~Oliver Lodge

There is a conservation of matter and of energy, there may be a conservation of life; or if not of life, of something which transcends life.

~Oliver Lodge

But although life is not energy, any more than it is matter, yet it directs energy and thereby controls arrangements of matter.

~Oliver Lodge

Death is not a word to fear, any more than birth is.

~Oliver Lodge

Life must be considered sui generis; it is not a form of energy, nor can it be expressed in terms of something else.

~Oliver Lodge

The old series of sittings with Mrs. Piper convinced me of survival for reasons which I should find it hard to formulate in any strict fashion, but that was their distinct effect.

~Oliver Lodge

..if a special geometry has to be invented in order to account for a falling apple, even Newton might be appalled at the complications which would ensue when really difficult problems are tackled.
