If the script's good, everything you need is in there. I just try and feel it, and do it honestly.

~Olivia Colman

If I didn't have children I might be more of a lush than I am. I like booze. I struggle with smoking. And I'm a big swearer. I'm trying to rein it in but I do think it's a nice seasoning of language.

~Olivia Colman

I'm not a pin-up, thankfully. I'm not suggesting I feel unconfident. I am beautiful to my husband. I am beautiful to my friends. I feel sexy and all those things with the people I love.

~Olivia Colman

I feel fortunate that I'm not a beauty. I'm not a classic beauty. I feel it is harder for girls who are like that. There are fewer parts.

~Olivia Colman

Everything with me is pretty close to the surface, but having kids has completely ruined my emotional equilibrium.

~Olivia Colman

The first time I did a school play was the first time I felt I was good at anything at all. I just loved it.

~Olivia Colman

I always assumed I'd be a terribly patient mum but it turns out I'm not!

~Olivia Colman

I love my job and I know I am very lucky but still, if you audition and you don't get it, it still affects you.

~Olivia Colman

I don't like the bullying, do-one-over style of comedy. It's so cheap.

~Olivia Colman

I always assumed I would leave drama school and do 'Lady Macbeth' and all sorts of serious things. It just didn't happen.

~Olivia Colman

I had a lovely, feral, free childhood - out and then come back when you're hungry or it gets too dark. I feel slightly cruel that I'm not offering my children the same.

~Olivia Colman

If a script is good, you are 10 steps into the part just reading it. But my choices are not all down to my taste. It is about people you have worked with before.
