I think there's something great and generic about goldfish. They're everybody's first pet.

~Paul Rudd

Humor is the most important thing in life. It trumps everything else and it's the only thing that helps me deal with everything else.

~Paul Rudd

Oh, the weather outside is weather.

~Paul Rudd

A lot of people say, "What's the worst part about being an actor?" And the worst part is that you're not a musician.

~Paul Rudd

Marriage is like a tense, unfunny version of Everybody Loves Raymond, only it doesn't last 22 minutes. It lasts forever.

~Paul Rudd

Nothing is ever cut-and-dried. There's anguish behind everything.

~Paul Rudd

Theater is the most enriching and thrilling thing to do as an actor.

~Paul Rudd

I'm not a comedian. I didn't study sketch comedy; my background isn't that.

~Paul Rudd

We all have different sides of our personalities, so I'd love to play some more different parts too.

~Paul Rudd

There's something great about the idea of working the land and living communally. That's healthy. That's good.

~Paul Rudd

I don't really think in terms of genre, I think in terms of story and character.

~Paul Rudd

At my core, I'm a Midwesterner.

~Paul Rudd

My sense of stand up comedy would be so esoteric.

~Paul Rudd

I can, and do, walk the street. No one bothers me or anything, because most people wouldn't know who I am.

~Paul Rudd

I'm sure that my wanting to be an actor had to do with a need for approval.

~Paul Rudd

My parents were married my whole life until my father passed away a few years ago.

~Paul Rudd

I never thought of myself as a comedic actor. I didn't go to Second City, that's not my background, I'm not a comic, I studied theater and my career when I started was a lot of dramatic stuff.

~Paul Rudd

I'm a huge David Wain fan. He's one of my best friends now, but he just makes me laugh continually, much to the annoyance of his wife.

~Paul Rudd

I don't consider myself a comedian because I don't really concern myself too much with jokes.

~Paul Rudd

To me some of the funniest movies would be probably categorized in the dramatic genre, and likewise some of the most dramatic films, or films that have the most dramatic moments, are in comedies.
