I waited a long time out in the world before I gave myself permission to fail. Please don't even bother asking. Don't bother telling the world you are ready. Show it. Do it.

~Peter Dinklage

I spend my nights just sitting and reading a book and drinking my tea and walking my dog. That's about as exciting as my life gets.

~Peter Dinklage

I hate that word "lucky." It cheapens a lot of hard work

~Peter Dinklage

Saying I was lucky negates the hard work I put in and spits on that guy who's freezing his ass off back in Brooklyn.

~Peter Dinklage

I love animals. All animals. I wouldn't hurt a cat or a dog or a chicken, or a cow. And I wouldn't ask someone else to hurt them for me. That's why I'm a vegetarian.

~Peter Dinklage

You can say no. You can not be the object of ridicule.

~Peter Dinklage

I was fortunate enough to have an upbringing that made me more accepting of who I am.

~Peter Dinklage

I dress and eat like a fifth-grader, basically. I like sandwiches and cereal and hooded sweatshirts.

~Peter Dinklage

George Martin is an incredible writer.

~Peter Dinklage

Being on television, playing the same character for many years, for me, I think that would get a little tedious.

~Peter Dinklage

Call me Elf.....one more time!

~Peter Dinklage

I think a lot of great male comic actors are introspective, quiet personalities, which I really admire. But they are really able to turn it up when the camera's on.

~Peter Dinklage

So I won't say I'm lucky. I'm fortunate enough to find or attract very talented people. For some reason I found them, and they found me.

~Peter Dinklage

I feel really lucky, although I hate that word - 'lucky'.

~Peter Dinklage

I like playing the guy on the sidelines. They have more fun.

~Peter Dinklage

Bad guys are complicated characters. It's always fun to play them. You get away with a lot more. You don't have a heroic code you have to live by.

~Peter Dinklage

I think if actors are successful at one thing, they paint themselves into a corner sometimes, and what's the fun in that?

~Peter Dinklage

My family had a habit of collecting creatures that didn't always want to be pets. The first animal I can remember was a Lab named Zoe.

~Peter Dinklage

Animals on factory farms all face pain and fear, just like the animals we share our homes with, yet are repeatedly abused in shocking ways.

~Peter Dinklage

Maybe everyone is a little too reassuring that things are going to be OK to college graduates. It gives them a false sort of security.

~Peter Dinklage

I don't socialize. I'm kind of a hermit. The life of an actor can be very lonely.

~Peter Dinklage

I do not fault anyone else who makes choices to play characters that they wished they hadn't... Because at the end of the day, none of us are happy with our jobs all the time.

~Peter Dinklage

I never lived in an abandoned railroad station.

~Peter Dinklage

Game of Thrones' is an amazing show, and I have no problem speaking of the virtues of HBO.
