A little town is like a lantern. Nothing's hid from sight.

~Rachel Field

Too much good fortune can make you smug and unaware. Happiness should be like an oasis, the greener for the desert that surrounds it.

~Rachel Field

When I was young they used to say people only threw stones at the tree that was loaded with fruit.

~Rachel Field

It's terrible when the weak are also cruel for then we are defenseless against them.

~Rachel Field

I used to think I had ambition... but now I'm not so sure. It may have been only discontent. They're easily confused.

~Rachel Field

One of the pleasantest things about book writing is that sometimes it brings one in touch with old friends.

~Rachel Field

I've seen public opinion shift like the wind and put out the very fire it lighted.

~Rachel Field

...his hoofbeats fall like rain, over and over again.

~Rachel Field

Doorbells are like a magic game, Or the grab-bag at a fair -- You never know when you hear one ring Who may be waiting there.

~Rachel Field

And scandal has a way of catching up with those who disregard its power.

~Rachel Field

You know the public is more easily swayed by persons than by principles.

~Rachel Field

There's plenty of fire in the coldest flint!

~Rachel Field

The sight of a cage is only frightening to the bird that has once been caught.

~Rachel Field

I was never one to begrudge people their memories. From a child I would listen when they spoke of the past.

~Rachel Field

The difference between ambition and discontent is quite a fine line and sometimes it is hard to tell which is which and which you are feeling!

~Rachel Field

There was no reality to pain when it left one, though while it held one fast all other realities faded.

~Rachel Field

no matter how hard and faithfully we may try we can never compensate another for some lack in his or her life.
