Sometimes you have to wander around until you find where you really belong. And sometimes it's right where you started.

~Rachel Gibson

Sometimes a person needs to hear you forgive them so they can start to forgive themselves.

~Rachel Gibson

I didn't choose to write a military man as much as Vince Haven chose me.

~Rachel Gibson

I wanted people to watch. I wanted people to see us together. I wanted people to see us kissing today. I want everyone to know that you're mine.

~Rachel Gibson

'Rescue Me' is the first book in a three-book series. Although, like all my series, the books are purposely written so that readers do not have to read them in order.

~Rachel Gibson

Anyone can get a degree or a certificate in something. Big deal. A piece of paper from a university somewhere doesn't define a person. It won't tell you who I am.

~Rachel Gibson

When you lock everything down tight so that the pain can't get out, you also keep good stuff from getting in.

~Rachel Gibson

The first book I sat down to write was an historical romance. It was really bad and thankfully no one ever saw it.

~Rachel Gibson

I write romance because I love to read romance.

~Rachel Gibson

I finished 'The Hunger Games' trilogy, and I love most anything with zombies.

~Rachel Gibson

Each time I reach a goal or read a great review, I am beyond pleased.

~Rachel Gibson

What is the politically correct term for 'retarded'?" "I think the words you're fishing for are 'mentally disabled.' And no. I'm not mentally disabled.

~Rachel Gibson

The two things I enjoy the most about writing are the first page of a book and the last. What's in between is very hard work.

~Rachel Gibson

The only problem with one-man woman was that he was not a one-woman man.

~Rachel Gibson

I've tried and I can't. The thought of it twists me in a knot.
