We're living in a world that says that if you engage in mass fraud, you'll be rewarded, but if you go down the street and steal an orange juice, you get arrested.

~Ramin Bahrani

The job of the writer and the filmmaker is not to impose his vision on the reality, but to be inspired by the reality and create a vision out of that.

~Ramin Bahrani

I never say "Action" or "Cut." Never. I think that would disturb the life from happening in and around everything.

~Ramin Bahrani

Since Hollywood seems to be more interested in people wearing tights and using powers, there seems to be a fertile ground for movies about real human beings.

~Ramin Bahrani

It's hard for me to say you have to accept that the world is meaningless and the landscape is there before and after. That's not something we learn much in our culture growing up.

~Ramin Bahrani

Sometimes we have dreams, but we just can't make them. That's normal.

~Ramin Bahrani

I think happy and hope is more hopeful when you acknowledge that there's awful things too.

~Ramin Bahrani

I'm not going to read reviews like, "I have to do these things." Any good criticism makes you think about your own films and about cinema in general.

~Ramin Bahrani

You have to let life come and go.

~Ramin Bahrani

I like to give the actors the freedom, and they know they have the freedom, to change anything they want at any time.

~Ramin Bahrani

The actors come and you start seeing things happen for real.

~Ramin Bahrani

Most of the projects aren't that interesting anymore. There used to be a day when the studios made amazing films, and they were about human beings.

~Ramin Bahrani

So much can be learned by any filmmaker by studying his work, in terms of blocking, staging, editing and sound.
