It is useful to study different traditions in order to be free of attachment to any one way of expressing what is beyond expression. (x)

~Ravi Ravindra

What we most love is not what we know, but what knows us and draws us. . . . (78)

~Ravi Ravindra

It is important not to abandon the practice of yoga because we believe it is driven by the wrong motivation. The practice of yoga itself transforms. Yoga has a magical quality.

~Ravi Ravindra

Active receptivity is needed, not a passive agitation.

~Ravi Ravindra

If We Sit With An Increasing Stillness Of The Body The Mind Gradually Stills And The Heart Is Filled With Quiet Joy

~Ravi Ravindra

Spiritual progress is when one becomes free not only of the knowledge which is inevitably from the past, but also from the need to know... and a desire to predict and control.

~Ravi Ravindra

Each one of us needs to discover the proper balance between the masculine and feminine energies, between the active and the receptive. (104)

~Ravi Ravindra

If you look at a person's checkbook and datebook, you know what their religion really is.

~Ravi Ravindra

Each place is the right place--the place where I now am can be a sacred space. (3)
