Few men during their lifetime come anywhere near exhausting the resources dwelling within them. There are deep wells of strength that are never used.

~Richard E. Byrd

Give praise to others while they are here; they won't need it in the hereafter.

~Richard E. Byrd

Progress grows out of motion.

~Richard E. Byrd

Give wind and tide a chance to change.

~Richard E. Byrd

I am learning that a man can live profoundly without masses of things.

~Richard E. Byrd

Half of the confusion in the world comes from not knowing how little we need.

~Richard E. Byrd

A man doesn't begin to attain wisdom until he recognizes he is no longer indispensable.

~Richard E. Byrd

A static hero is a public liability. Progress grows out of motion.

~Richard E. Byrd

There are deep wells of strength that are never used.

~Richard E. Byrd

A discordant mind, black with confusion and despair, would finish me off as thoroughly as the cold.

~Richard E. Byrd

Patience is what you need in the Antarctic. Wait-Give wind and tide a chance to change.

~Richard E. Byrd

Solitude is an excellent laboratory in which to observe the extent to which manners and habits are conditioned by others.

~Richard E. Byrd

No woman has ever stepped on Little America - and we have found it to be the most silent and peaceful place in the world.

~Richard E. Byrd

Christianity has not failed. It is simply that nations have failed to try it. There would be no war in a God-directed world.

~Richard E. Byrd

The human race, my intuition tells me, is not outside the cosmic process and is not an accident. It is as much a part of the universe as the trees, the mountains, the aurora, and the stars.

~Richard E. Byrd

We men who serve science serve only a reflection in a mirror.

~Richard E. Byrd

If the expedition had failed, which it might well have done with all hope centered in just one plane, I should still be trying to pay back my obligations.

~Richard E. Byrd
