You have to make thousands and thousands of drawings before an illustration is perfected.

~Richard MacDonald

Sculpture will last a lot longer than painting.

~Richard MacDonald

I was tired of illustration. You'd work so hard on a commission and it would go in to a magazine, and you'd turn the page and it was gone.

~Richard MacDonald

My goal is to make fine art, and fine art comes from the soul. If you have virtuosity and facility, you can take and create something of significance.

~Richard MacDonald

There is a connection between me and the collectors, and as admirers of the work they tell me about the differences the pieces are able to make in their lives on a daily basis.

~Richard MacDonald

I don't do commissions and I like the freedom to create what my heart or mind tells me to.

~Richard MacDonald

I create for artistic intent only and do everything from life.

~Richard MacDonald

The greatest success is creating whatever you want without conditions. I don't do commissions unless I really want to, because it's like having a job.

~Richard MacDonald

I'm always looking for the next challenge.

~Richard MacDonald

At any one time, I'll have 30 to 40 pieces going on in the studio, so this is not economically driven at all.

~Richard MacDonald

There are very few people who do what I do.

~Richard MacDonald

I cannot tell you how many people, powerful people, come to my studio and they are in tears they are so moved by what they see.
