Always trust computer games.

~Ridley Pearson

If you don't believe in yourself, who will?' ~Maybeck

~Ridley Pearson

Walt loved technology. He didn't understand it half the time, but the beauty of good technology was that he didn't have to understand it. Just use it.

~Ridley Pearson

He likes you, too." Finn repeated. "And don't tell me to shut up." "Shut up!" -Kingdom Keepers, Shell Game

~Ridley Pearson

True love isn't reserved for weddings and ceremonies. It's from the heart. That's all it has to be. All it ever is.

~Ridley Pearson

Be careful what you wear to bed, because you never know where you might wake up.

~Ridley Pearson

I think every fiction writer, to a certain extent, is a schizophrenic and able to have two or three or five voices in his or her body. We seek, through our profession, to get those voices onto paper.

~Ridley Pearson

The way you get better is putting words on the page and getting them behind you.

~Ridley Pearson

I've been running from, and toward, death all my life, more aware of it than a person should be.

~Ridley Pearson

When I do things I shouldn't do, my mother says I need a new pair of glasses -- that I should be looking differently at the choices I make.

~Ridley Pearson

Also not the kind of place to hide a server." "Is that another pun?" She asked. "No! I swear! I didn't mean that one." ~Shell Game, Kingdom Keepers #5

~Ridley Pearson

I'm a big girl, Finn.

~Ridley Pearson

What is that in his hand?" "A cleaver. As in-" "Butcher's knife." "You got it." "I hope not." "He does not look happy." "Are you sure it's a he?" "I don't want to know.

~Ridley Pearson

Jez had gone from an evil twin to a sweet, even angelic, girl, all in less than a minute.

~Ridley Pearson

Who's Chernabog?" Grumbled Maybeck. Philby answered, "Only the most powerful villain Walt Disney ever created.

~Ridley Pearson

Wayne was one of the worst drivers Finn had ever met. The bus nearly sideswiped two cars, then veered left and scraped its wheels against the curb, before smashing back down the roadway.

~Ridley Pearson

I... do... not... do... lightning.

~Ridley Pearson

But listen up Alex Rider.

~Ridley Pearson

Smee, you are a supreme idjit." "Aye, Cap'n.

~Ridley Pearson

You will leave now," said Grdankl the Strong. "Go! Do not be afraid! If you die, it is okay!

~Ridley Pearson

What do you care more about? The kids or your hair?

~Ridley Pearson

Okay, so let's run faster.

~Ridley Pearson

I'm still only half the writer I hope I will be.

~Ridley Pearson

I'm about to read Scott Turow's 'Innocent.' I've been hungry for this book since he first told me it was in the works. I'm a serious Turow fan.

~Ridley Pearson

MEN, Charlene said. Leave that to you! Willa quipped.

~Ridley Pearson

Lightning crashed on the horizon. A breeze swirled around the Cast Members. The air tasted dusty, almost bitter, with electrical charge.

~Ridley Pearson

Finn whispered, "What has a head, thorax, and abdomen, but stands six feet tall?" "A snowman?"

~Ridley Pearson

Being right wasn't nearly as important as doing right.
