You're so very good at that. The temper, the scowl. You must drink shots of testosterone in your morning coffee.

~Rob Thurman

Leandros's favorite place had turned out not to be vegetarian, but vegan, which was for people who preferred their suicide slow.

~Rob Thurman

Pooh hater,' I muttered under my breath. 'Winnie-the-Pooh was not a koala--why am I even arguing about this with you?

~Rob Thurman

We all have our security blankets in this world. Some are just sharper than others.

~Rob Thurman

There are a lot of truths in this world. When it rains it pours. It's always darkest before the dawn. He who smelt it dealt it.

~Rob Thurman

Why is it always the world? Why is it never just half a block? Or Jersey? You know, something we could live without?

~Rob Thurman

What're you still doing up? You know all good little ninjas should be in bed, visions of homicidal sugarplums dancing in their heads.

~Rob Thurman

Snap judgments? I'd gotten over those about the time I was toilet trained. Swore off diapers and faith in the human experience all in one week.

~Rob Thurman

Home is where the heart is or where you bury the ones you want to eat later.

~Rob Thurman

All of his life had been about making sure I kept mine.

~Rob Thurman

I am your brother. I was supposed to be your brother before either of us was born. Karmic debt. It appears I was Vlad the Impaler or Genghis Khan in a past life.

~Rob Thurman

You're the little spoon, aren't you?

~Rob Thurman

Look at the ex-demon with his big boy pants on now.

~Rob Thurman

Pick up your clothes. I am not your maid. How do I know this? A maid cannot kill you with a tube sock. I can.

~Rob Thurman

I raised another shot. "That sound you hear is the heads of moral conservatives spontaneously exploding in the distance.

~Rob Thurman

Memories - you can't escape them, but you can't let them rule you either.

~Rob Thurman

If there is no trust, there is nothing. Trust is all.

~Rob Thurman

People--stupid when they lived; potentially stupid when they died.

~Rob Thurman

They don't have to choose either/or. They can have their cake and mutilate it too.

~Rob Thurman

When life gives you lemons. . . You might as well shove 'em where the sun don't shine, because you sure as hell aren't ever going to see any lemonade.

~Rob Thurman

Lies were like acid, corrosive: They could dissolve trust in a heartbeat.

~Rob Thurman

Funny thing about faith ... it goes a lot faster than it comes.
