I know that if odour were visible, as colour is, I'd see the summer garden in rainbow clouds.

~Robert Bridges

When men were all asleep the snow came flying, In large white flakes falling on the city brown, Stealthily and perpetually settling and loosely lying, Hushing the latest traffic of the drowsy town.

~Robert Bridges

Were I a cloud I'd gather My skirts up in the air, And fly I well know whither, And rest I well know where.

~Robert Bridges

When first we met we did not guess that Love would prove so hard a master.

~Robert Bridges

So sweet love seemed that April morn, when first we kissed beside the thorn, so strangely sweet, it was not strange we thought that love could never change.

~Robert Bridges

And whiter grows the foam, The small moon lightens more; And as I turn me home, My shadow walks before.

~Robert Bridges

But I can tell - let truth be told - That love will change in growing old; Though day by day is nought to see, So delicate his motions be.

~Robert Bridges

Whither, O splendid ship, thy white sails crowding, Leaning across the bosom of the urgent West, That fearest nor sea rising, nor sky clouding, Whither away, fair rover, and what thy quest?

~Robert Bridges

O soul, be patient: thou shalt find A little matter mend all this; Some strain of music to thy mind, Some praise for skill not spent amiss.

~Robert Bridges

O youth whose hope is high, Who dost to Truth aspire, Whether thou live or die, O look not back nor tire.

~Robert Bridges

Beauty, the eternal Spouse of the Wisdom of God and Angel of his Presence thru' all creation.

~Robert Bridges

Beauty being the best of all we know sums up the unsearchable and secret aims of nature.

~Robert Bridges

Unto us all our days are love's anniversaries, each one In turn hath ripened something of our happiness.

~Robert Bridges

My delight and thy delight Walking, like two angels white, In the gardens of the night.

~Robert Bridges

Spring goeth all in white, / Crowned with milk-white may: / In fleecy flocks of light / O'er heaven the white clouds stray.

~Robert Bridges

There is a hill beside the silver Thames, Shady with birch and beech and odorous pine; And brilliant underfoot with thousand gems, Steeply the thickets to his floods decline.

~Robert Bridges

Scatter the clouds that hide The face of heaven, and show Where sweet peace doth abide, Where Truth and Beauty grow.

~Robert Bridges

Since to be loved endures, To love is wise.

~Robert Bridges

The south-wind strengthens to a gale, / Across the moon the clouds fly fast, / The house is smitten as with a flail, / The chimney shudders to the blast.

~Robert Bridges

Our stability is but balance, and conduct lies In masterful administration of the unforeseen.

~Robert Bridges

To-morrow it seem
Like the empty words of a dream
Remembered on waking.

~Robert Bridges

The hill pines were sighing, O'er-cast and chill was the day; A mist in the valley lying Blotted the pleasant May.

~Robert Bridges

Poetry's magic lies in the imagery which satisfies even without interpretation..it is accepted as easily as it was created.

~Robert Bridges

Good melody is never out of fashion

~Robert Bridges

When Death to either shall come - I pray it be first to me.

~Robert Bridges

I love all beauteous things, I seek and adore them

~Robert Bridges

Beauty is the highest of all these occult influences, the quality of appearances that thru' the sense wakeneth spiritual emotion in the mind of man.

~Robert Bridges

The lonely season in lonely lands, when fled
Are half the birds, and mists lie low,
and the sun is rarely seen, nor strayeth far from his bed;
The short days pass unwelcomed one by one.

~Robert Bridges

I have loved flowers that fade,
Within whose magic tents
Rich hues have marriage made
With sweet unmemoried scents:
A honeymoon delight,
A joy of love at sight,
That ages in an hour
My song be like a flower!

~Robert Bridges

I live in hope and that I think do all
Who come into this world.
