If you don't receive love from the ones who are meant to love you, you will never stop looking for it.

~Robert Goolrick

There is an ache in my heart for the imagined beauty of a life I haven't had, from which I had been locked out, and it never goes away.

~Robert Goolrick

I think kissing is what separates us from the animals and makes us divine.

~Robert Goolrick

It's a sad thing to watch your best friend turn into somebody you don't know anymore. Or even want to know.

~Robert Goolrick

There is a loveliness to life that does not fade. Even in the terrors of the night, there is a tendency toward grace that does not fail us.

~Robert Goolrick

If love drove people mad, what would lack of love do?

~Robert Goolrick

Nothing says hell has to be fire.

~Robert Goolrick

The thing is, all memory is fiction.

~Robert Goolrick

I know that it's easier to look at death than it is to look at pain, because while death is irrevocable, and the grief will lessen in time, pain is too often merely relentless and irreversible.

~Robert Goolrick

The beginnings were sweet, the endings usually bitter, but the middles were only the tightrope you walked between the one and the other. No more than that.

~Robert Goolrick
