In the longer run and for wide-reaching issues, more creative solutions tend to come from imaginative interdisciplinary collaboration.

~Robert J. Shiller

It amazes me how people are often more willing to act based on little or no data than to use data that is a challenge to assemble.

~Robert J. Shiller

The ability to focus attention on important things is a defining characteristic of intelligence.

~Robert J. Shiller

Some of the best theorizing comes after collecting data because then you become aware of another reality.

~Robert J. Shiller

Money management has been a profession involving a lot of fakery - people saying they can beat the market, and they really can't.

~Robert J. Shiller

Economics is (now) about emotion and psychology.

~Robert J. Shiller

I am worried that the collapse of home prices might turn out to be the most severe since the Great Depression.

~Robert J. Shiller

Consider our difficulties avoiding junk food and overspending. Such addictions were carefully planned-for by professional marketing teams.

~Robert J. Shiller

Somehow, talking to young students brings you back to reality - it should, anyway.

~Robert J. Shiller

Liberalism downplays certain of our moral senses: loyalty, authority, and sanctity.

~Robert J. Shiller

Life's meaning heavily benefits from lifelong bonds.

~Robert J. Shiller

In the short run and for decisions unlikely to have broad impact, it may be more cost effective to use just one expert.

~Robert J. Shiller

Each profession has its own toolkit.

~Robert J. Shiller

Marketers know that if people you respect - perhaps laughably including entertainers and athletes - say they like a product, you're more likely to buy.

~Robert J. Shiller

There is more uncertainty than usual about job futures because computers are replacing more and more human intelligence, and globalization is proceeding at an accelerating pace.

~Robert J. Shiller

News media stimulate bubbles, since stories about them boost their audience.
