There is no secret so close as that between a rider and his horse.

~Robert Smith Surtees

More people are flattered into virtue than bullied out of vice.

~Robert Smith Surtees

Women never look so well as when one comes in wet and dirty from hunting.

~Robert Smith Surtees

There are three sorts of lawyers - able, unable and lamentable.

~Robert Smith Surtees

Better be killed than frightened to death.

~Robert Smith Surtees

It ar'n't that I loves the fox less, but that I loves the 'ound more.

~Robert Smith Surtees

The horse loves the hound, and I loves both.

~Robert Smith Surtees

Life would be very pleasant if it were not for its enjoyments.

~Robert Smith Surtees

The only infallible rule we know is, that the man who is always talking about being a gentleman never is one.

~Robert Smith Surtees

The supply of good fellows is by no means in excess of the demand. A man has only to hoist the flag of hospitality to insure a very considerable amount of custom.

~Robert Smith Surtees

The country has its charms-cheapness for one.

~Robert Smith Surtees

There is no secret closer than what passes between a man and his horse

~Robert Smith Surtees

It is an invariable rule with the dealers to praise the bad points and let the good 'uns speak for themselves.

~Robert Smith Surtees

No one knows how ungentlemanly he can look, until he has seen himself in a shocking bad hat.

~Robert Smith Surtees

No man rides harder than my Lord Scamperdale - always goes as if he had a spare neck in his pocket.

~Robert Smith Surtees

Three things I never lends - my 'oss, my wife, and my name.
