The two things I did learn were that you are as powerful and strong as you allow yourself to be, and that the most difficult part of any endeavor is taking the first step, making the first decision.

~Robyn Davidson

The good Lord in his ultimate wisdom gave us three things to make life bearable: hope, jokes, and dogs, but the greatest of these was dogs.

~Robyn Davidson

And there are new kinds of nomads, not people who are at home everywhere, but who are at home nowhere. I was one of them

~Robyn Davidson

I believe when you're stuck in one spot for too long it's best to throw a grenade where you stand, and jump and pray.

~Robyn Davidson

When there is no one to remind you what society's rules are, and there is nothing to keep you linked to that society, you had better be prepared for some startling changes.

~Robyn Davidson

I experienced that sinking feeling you get when you know you have conned yourself into doing something difficult and there's no going back.

~Robyn Davidson

I believe that the subconscious always knows what is best. It is our conditional, vastly overrated rational mind which screws everything up.

~Robyn Davidson

Some of us just don't want to be famous ... anonymity cannot be bought for any price, once you have lost it.

~Robyn Davidson

Real travel would be to see the world, for even an instant, with another's eyes

~Robyn Davidson

The most difficult part of any endeavour is taking the first step, making the first decision.

~Robyn Davidson

It is better to proceed with one's duty in the service of others than wallow in the pain attachments bring

~Robyn Davidson

I just don't see myself as a travel writer. I can't. I don't.

~Robyn Davidson

Camel trips, as I suspected all along, and as I was about to have confirmed, do not begin or end: they merely change form.

~Robyn Davidson

That odd idea that one person can go to a foreign part and in this rather odd voice describe it to the folks back home doesn't make much sense in the post-colonial world.
