Before saying 'I disagree' be sure you can say 'I understand.'

~Roger E. Olson

We're creatures, so we have limits.

~Roger E. Olson

Knowledge has come to be defined as what can be proven by secular evidence and arguments.

~Roger E. Olson

Only God has no limits (except those he voluntarily imposes on himself). The mantra "no limits" is actually a call to idolatry.

~Roger E. Olson

As the perfect parent, God suffers emotional pain when his creatures, created in his own image and likeness, rebel against him and do evil instead of good.

~Roger E. Olson

Humanism cannot survive on a purely secular platform.

~Roger E. Olson

To some of us, raised and trained in allowing the Bible to absorb the world (that is, to "see" all of reality through the biblical story), the Bible is quite clear about all really important matters.

~Roger E. Olson

Human beings are special, of higher dignity and worth than other animals, because they're created in God's own image and likeness. It's actually true humanism.

~Roger E. Olson

The biblical writers assumed many things about reality that modern, Western people do not assume because we've been conditioned by our cultures to assume otherwise.

~Roger E. Olson

We're created in God's image, but our souls or spirits are not offshoots of God's own Spirit - as New Age teachers would have us believe.

~Roger E. Olson

The idea of having no limits, either through education or money or possessions or power, is radically alien to everything the Bible assumes and says.

~Roger E. Olson

Only a loving and covenant-making personal God can provide humans with unique dignity, worth, and rights. Blind nature cannot do that. So, for the Christian, "secular humanism" is an oxymoron.
