The Poplar grows up straight and tall, The Pear-tree spreads along the wall

~Sara Coleridge

there is nothing so uncertain and slippery as fact.

~Sara Coleridge

The desire to be the object of public attention is weak, but the excessive dread of it is but a form of vanity and over-self-contemplativeness.

~Sara Coleridge

February brings the rain, Thaws the frozen lake again.

~Sara Coleridge

Life is the steam of the corporeal engine; the soul is the engineer who makes use of the steam-quickened engine.

~Sara Coleridge

~Sara Coleridge

Fresh October brings the pheasant, Then to gather nuts is pleasant.

~Sara Coleridge

I very much wish that some day or other you may have time to learn Greek, because that language is an idea. Even a little of it is like manure to the soil of the mind, and makes it bear finer flowers.

~Sara Coleridge

avarice is especially, I suppose, a disease of the imagination.

~Sara Coleridge

It is remarkable what fine hands men of genius write, even when they are as awkward in all other uses of the hand as a cow with a musket.

~Sara Coleridge

I would have any one, who really and truly has leisure and ability, make verses. I think it a more refining and happy-making occupation than any other pastime accomplishment.

~Sara Coleridge

Religious bigotry is a dull fire - hot enough to roast an ox, but with no lambent, luminous flame shooting up from it.
