~Sarah Rees Brennan

Jared told her he used to be an exotic dancer in San Francisco.' 'My body is a gift from God,' Jared said gravely. 'Except for my hips, which are clearly a gift from the devil.

~Sarah Rees Brennan

Fear's useless. Either something bad happens or it doesn't: If it doesn't, you've wasted time being afraid, and if it does, you've wasted time that you could have spent sharpening your weapons.

~Sarah Rees Brennan

Good practice, everyone," Rusty said at last. "Light on the actual learning, heavy on the emotional catharsis, and thanks to Jared I think I need a rabies shot, but them's the breaks.

~Sarah Rees Brennan

It's bits of dead cow; don't ask it to perform miracles.

~Sarah Rees Brennan

Why were you even there?" Kami asked. "Were you following me home?" "Are you asking me if I was stalking you?" "Maybe," said Kami.

"Were you?" "Yeah," said Jared. "Little bit.

~Sarah Rees Brennan

If the truth didn't help anyone, and love didn't last, what was there left to struggle toward?

~Sarah Rees Brennan

I'd rather live laughing for one year than live without laughing for one hundred.

~Sarah Rees Brennan

Not doing things you can do is the whole point of laziness. Not doing something you can't do is just sensible.

~Sarah Rees Brennan

Forest deep, silent bells
There's a secret no one tells Valley quiet, water still
Lynburns watching on the hill
Apples red, corn gold
Almost everyone grows old

~Sarah Rees Brennan

I was thinking." "I see no evidence of that, Jared." Kami said.

~Sarah Rees Brennan
