MFA programs are to the world of art what gentrification is to your neighborhood.

~Sarah Schulman

People see themselves as 'succeeding' because they are individually exceptional -- they don't see that there is a mechanism that has made it possible for them.

~Sarah Schulman

Breezy journalistic sentences about wealthy white people unaware that other human beings are real became the rubber stamp product of the elite MFA programs.

~Sarah Schulman

You have to have coalitions in order to make change in America.

~Sarah Schulman

I've noticed throughout my long life that people with vested interest in things staying the way they are regularly insist that both change and accountability are impossible.

~Sarah Schulman

The wind smelled clean, like clean magazines. It smelled like invisible ink.

~Sarah Schulman

My readers are 90 percent gay, and it's who I write for. I am not here to entertain straight people.

~Sarah Schulman

Sometimes a person has to stop talking about art for a moment and take a look around.

~Sarah Schulman

What I tend to tell my students is, "When you look in the mirror and see a smart, angry girl who wants to be free, you're seeing a paradigm that Kathy [Acker] helped bring into the recognizable."

~Sarah Schulman

Since Freud, people think you either want to be a man or hate men. You only exist in relationship to men.

~Sarah Schulman

If we love and identify people with HIV and other oppressed people, we can help transform the epidemic.

~Sarah Schulman

You have to notice the truth in order to be able to avoid it.

~Sarah Schulman

I am not here to entertain straight people.
