I'm trying to use the language of today to express a general existential crisis that I think the world and I are going through.

~Sean Lennon

There are only really a few stories to tell in the end, and betrayal and the failure of love is one of those good stories to tell.

~Sean Lennon

The most important thing in art is taste.

~Sean Lennon

My father was assassinated by an FBI-CIA connection

~Sean Lennon

Songwriting is kind of like a craft. It's not something that just comes in a dream. You've got to work at it.

~Sean Lennon

I'm not trying to overcome my father or fill his shoes or reach any kind of level that he did. We're talking about a [Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart] of rock music.

~Sean Lennon

Anyone who doesn't think the government killed my father either hasn't given the issue much thought, or is insane.

~Sean Lennon

Wonder Woman was my first love, and now she's [Charlotte Kemp Muhl] my last.

~Sean Lennon

We live in a pretty bleak time. I feel that in the air. Everything is uncertain. Everything feels like its on the precipice of some major transformation, whether we like it or not.

~Sean Lennon

Now Daddy is part of God. I guess when you die you become much more bigger, because you're part of everything.

~Sean Lennon

They say rock is dead. Andy [Warhol] said art is dead. God is dead according to Nietzsche. If everything's dead what's alive? Only technology. We're in the era of technology.

~Sean Lennon

Putting out commercial pieces and promoting them and trying to sell them to people is not necessarily what it means to be an artist

~Sean Lennon

For me, songwriting is something that I have to do ritually. I don't just wait for inspiration; I try to write a little bit every day.

~Sean Lennon

I have a piano and a guitar, and I tend to switch back and forth between those two instruments to help me get inspired.

~Sean Lennon

The most important thing in my father's life? World peace. Me and my brother. My mom.

~Sean Lennon

I'm not that in control of myself that I could be specific about exactly the way I'm doing everything as it happens. I'm just trying my best

~Sean Lennon

I actually think in music, learning technical stuff doesn't matter. You can be as technical as you like, but still sound awful.

~Sean Lennon

I try not to do anything by formula.

~Sean Lennon

I like to have books around to give me ideas-to get the verbal part of my brain to start working.

~Sean Lennon

Now, music almost feels naked in my mind.

~Sean Lennon

Making films is great. You've got 100 people around and you're all dressing up and making weird art - it's a fun group activity.

~Sean Lennon

I spend my time trying to figure art out. I was brought up to believe that the way one processes information is by making it into art. That's how I live my life.

~Sean Lennon

It's a bit embarrassing watching myself, but I couldn't get someone else to play me, that would've been stupid.

~Sean Lennon

I like songs that have lots of different parts in them, an intro, an outro and a bridge.

~Sean Lennon

I like songs that go to different places and then come back.

~Sean Lennon

I'm lucky that a lot of my friends are in the entertainment industry.

~Sean Lennon

I feel that film is inevitably the medium of the future. It has been for years, decades, but more so now than ever.

~Sean Lennon

I'm lucky to have had a father [John Lennon] who paid attention.

~Sean Lennon

What I hate is when you're wearing something and you feel it on your body. I hate that.

~Sean Lennon

I do think British tailoring is the best. French people hate me when I say that, but I do think it's true.

~Sean Lennon

I like music because it's the only invisible art form.

~Sean Lennon

My favourite men's clothes are like Victorian British clothing.

~Sean Lennon

I feel like I've been way overexposed in the press. I'd rather play shows and represent myself in person.

~Sean Lennon

My tendency is to be very experimental.

~Sean Lennon

Growing up, I fantasized about being a rock musician and that somehow it would be really easy. I didn't realize that it's so much work.

~Sean Lennon

I've always been cool, basically. I was cool in utero.

~Sean Lennon

I don't like when people dress intentionally ugly. Personally that's not my thing.
