I don't read novels that are looking to convince me of anything. I believe that literature needs to be a machine of illusions.

~Sergio Chejfec

I don't even know - for me, it's difficult to decide which is more important - the things or the thoughts. It seems to me that certain things came up more or less naturally.

~Sergio Chejfec

At one point I felt a tension between objects, their real, physical lives, and the idea of meaning: the physical, material reality of a book, and the totally intangible experience of reading it.
